Drug dealer deported

A drug dealer has lost a six-year battle to stay in Britain, the European Court of Human Rights has ruled. Ifeanyi Ndidi, 30, who left Nigeria with his mother when he was two, appealed to the court on account of his son. He was ordered to be deported in 2011 after being sentenced to seven years in prison for supplying Class A drugs. Ndidi argued that he had not reoffended since his release from prison in 2011.
